

K-love radio serves me as a resident in the local community by providing alerts when needed, news, and a positive encouraging place to rest my radio dial that is not full of stuff my children should not be listening to.

If an LPFM was to take K-Loves translator, the area would lose positive encouraging music and be left with stations pushing sex, violence and moral decay.

Positive encouraging music keeps people happy, less violent, more giving, full of hope, full of joy, and lets them know there is so much more in life than what the rest of the radio stations push, like sex, drugs, violence etc. What type of impact do you think is better on a community?
